

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

Judge Elliot's book evinces throughout rare discrimination and the most painstaking labor. Although it is not designed to compete with or supplant in any way Judge Dillon's more exhaustive work on the same subject, it will yet be serviceable to those already in the practice of law.

The Law of Bankruptcy and the National Bankruptcy Act of 1898.
By William Miller Collier, of the Auburn, N. Y., Bar. Matthew Bender, Albany, N. Y., 1898. Sheep, pp. 550.

Nothing is more characteristic of the times than the issuance of such a treatise as this on the Law of Bankruptcy a little more than two months after Federal legislation, to some extent, changing and unsettling the principles. Mr. Collier's purpose has been to prepare a book which shall aid the Bar "in the solution of the questions that will arise in the early months of practice under the act, before adjudications are plentiful." This it will certainly do. The book is wonderfully complete, considering the time allotted for the task.